

Welcome to the University of Applied Police Sciences Saxony-Anhalt

Welcome!

After it had been subjected to a number of sweeping constructional and re-constructional projects over the years 2009 to 2011, the University of Applied Police Sciences Saxony-Anhalt appears now as a modern facility for education, research and service.

The university offers the course of studies "Police Law Enforcement Service" (B.A.). The course comprises six semesters. Four theoretical semesters and two practical semesters are to be completed during that term, with the theoretical semesters being complemented by practical exercises. The successful completion of the Bachelor course of studies implies the qualification for the first beginner's office of the police law enforcement service in the professional career level 2 (command service level).

Besides the Bachelor course of studies a 2 year and six month vocational training is offered to qualify for the second beginner's office within the professional career level 1 (operative service).

In order to meet the requirements of a modern educational centre, the university disposes of a lecture hall for 300 people and two multi-purpose rooms for 48 people each, all under the roof of the university's dining hall, a library with currently 28,400 units in stock, a new gymnasium and a sports ground.

All that provides the best setting for scientific studies and basic vocational training.

Even living on the university's grounds has become possible after the reconstructions.

The marvellously designed campus invites you to learn and study but also to relax after an exhausting day.
